Frosch's farewell:

Space program future remains up in the air

By BRENT MACEY

In a farewell speech at NSTL Tuesday, Dr. Robert A. Frosch, outgoing administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told center personnel he does not know what the future holds for NASA or who will be his successor.

Frosch was nominated by the Carter administration in June of 1977. He was the fifth man to head the nation's civilian space agency.

His resignation is effective Jan. 20. He cited career opportunities 'which may never come by again' as his reason for submitting his resignation in October, before the presidential elections.

"I can no longer ignore the competitive opportunities available to me and to my family in private life," Frosch said.

Frosch will become first president of the American Association of Engineering Societies, 'an umbrella federation of all engineering organizations.'

He said the association would be a voice for one-half million engineers.

"For the first time we hope to become the educational voice for the engineering profession," he said.

Frosch said the association will speak out on a number of public issues including the impact of technology on the American society.

He said the outgoing Carter administration left a budget of $5.6 billion for the fiscal 1981 space program budget.

"I do not know what the incoming administration will do with the outgoing administration's budget," he said.

Frosch said the Reagan administration will be forced to face 'doubling or redoubling' the budget for remote sensing research or deciding which programs will be shelved.

In terms of the space shuttle's progress, Frosch said the success of the will assist the local arson squad in investigation of the incident.

"The two and one-half story wood frame building sustained moderate damage. The back northwest wall and roof of the house, and an adjoining servant's quarters sustained the heaviest damage," the fire chief reported.

An insurance adjuster at the beachfront home Wednesday morning said it

Car thieves, Buick depart Bay area simultaneously

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Police are in search of a 1976 Buick LaSabre, tan top and cream bottom, stolen in front of the Pyramid Realty 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Carroll Powell, car owner, reports that she had the vehicle parked next to the real estate office entrance.

Bay Chief Douglas Williams reports, "All law enforcement agencies in the area were immediately notified."

"Long Beach police spotted the stolen vehicle and gave chase and lost it around the Naval Base in Gulfport," Williams added.

Williams stated, "The employees in the real estate office heard two car doors slam and Mrs. Powell looked outside and saw her car was gone and notified police."

A John Doe warrant has been issued and Lt. Gordon Campbell is investigating the incident, Williams reports.

Williams allowed that, "Earlier Tuesday afternoon four alleged car thieves were released from the Hancock County jail after being held for Louisiana police for allegedly taking a vehicle belonging to a Vermont guest at the Marriott in New Orleans."

The four were arrested in a shopping center Sunday by Waveland Police, according to Investigator Robert Tartavouille.

Tartavouille stated, "Authorities in Vermont did not want to pay for the extradition of the four, so we could not continue to hold them."

Gunman robs Kiln store

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Police are seeking a lone gunman involved in a reported armed robbery of the Majik Mart in Kiln Monday.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said, "My dispatcher received a call at 9:20 p.m. Monday from Holland Ladner, Majik Mart employee, informing us of an armed robbery at the store."

Ladner told deputies, a black male, driving a white car, wearing a face mask and gloves, 5'-11", thin, blue jeans, cloth sack over head, carrying a small caliber blue steel gun, possibly Louisiana license plates on vehicle had robbed the store of $472.

Road blocks were immediately setup with assistance from Mississippi Highway Patrol, Waveland Police, Harrison County Sheriff's Department and St. Tammy Parish Sheriff's Department, according to Peterson.

The subject was reported to police as heading south on Hwy. 603 in the fairly new white vehicle as he fled the scene.

Officers going to the scene of the robbery were Hancock Deputies A.J. Cuevas, Willie Lee, Ray Murphy and Auxiliary Deputies Floyd Fricke and Linda Sand.

Peterson states that the case is still under investigation with Alvin Ladner in charge.

Lawrence Welk reception to top Heart campaign

By EDGAR PEREZ

Highlight of American Heart Association's Mississippi District Nine fundraising campaign this year will be a $100-a-plate buffet reception for Lawrence Welk prior to his Mar. 7 concert in the Coast Coliseum.

Warren Alford, Hancock Bank vice president and the bank's Pass Christian branch manager, told the Pass Christian Rotary Club Tuesday reception ticket holders would get an opportunity to meet the famous orchestra leader.

Alford, chairman of Heart's fundraising effort in Hancock, Harrison, Stone, Jackson and Pearl River counties, and J.E. Loiacano of Bay St. Louis, health and fitness expert, presented a heart-oriented program at Pass Rotary's weekly luncheon at Annie's Restaurant on Henderson Point.

Loiacano, owner of Loiacano's Health Club, encouraged use of the jump rope as 'an excellent way to get in shape.'

Alford said the Heart Association will sponsor a statewide 'Skip-A-Thon' featuring the jump rope, Mar. 2 through Mar. 6.

Loiacano said physical fitness should be considered in four categories:

1-Cardio-vascular or heart condition achieved best through aerobic or continuous motion exercises such as jumping rope, bicycling and jogging in which subcutaneous or outer-layer fat is burned.

2-Muscular development through resistive activity such as weightlifting in which the body is exerted beyond its normal levels, thus burning intramuscular fat such as that seen in a well-marbled steak.

3-Flexibility which is best achieved through stretching movements such as those necessary in swimming or yoga.

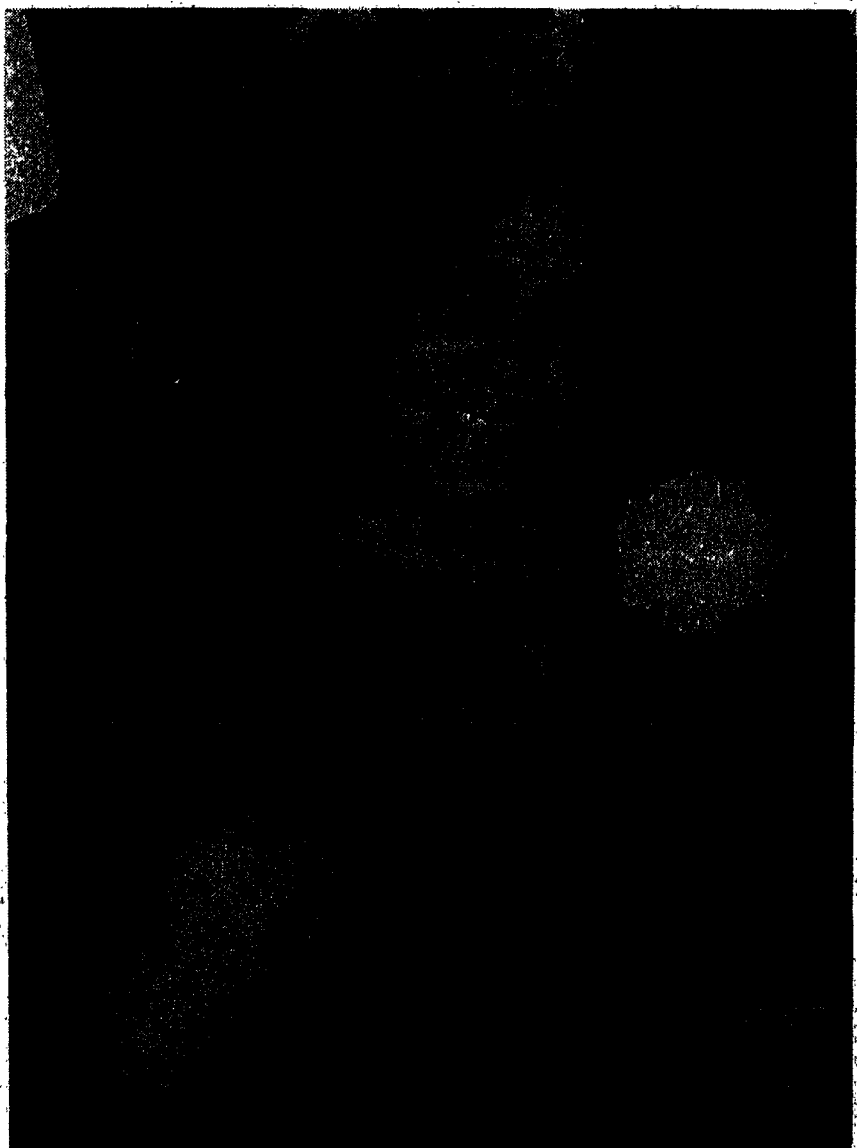

And 4-Motor function involving development of agility, balance, coordination, and timing.

"Make your program as enjoyable as possible in seeking physical fitness," the former Mississippi State University strength coach urged. "Start slow," he cautioned.

Concerning the jump rope, Loiacano said ten minutes of jumping rope is comparable to 40 minutes of jogging.

"It can be argued safely that if you can jump rope for ten minutes continuously you are in excellent condition—jumping rope is a very strenuous exercise," he stated.

The speaker also urged good physical conditioning and fitness in order to meet emergency situations. He cited a recent case in which a man who, when

AFT officials attend confab

Mississippi American Federation of Teachers executive board members James Cater, Andrews Wilkinson, Jack Perry, and Maryann Graczyk participated in an invitational regional conference on "Plain Talk About Standardized Tests" in New Orleans January 9, 10, and 11.

The conference was conducted by James G. Ward, director of research for the AFT and Jewell C. Gould, assistant director.

The Coast residents joined with representatives of nine other states in examining current trends and attitudes regarding normed standardized tests and criterion referenced tests.

Included in the conference were discussions on the purposes, interpretation, and application of the tests. In addition, the importance of tests was stressed.

Commenting on the National Education Association's anti-test stance, Ward said AFT was neither anti nor pro tests.

"Testing is a necessary component of education," he said.

"We are especially concerned that tests be used for the purposes for which they were intended and not misused," he added.

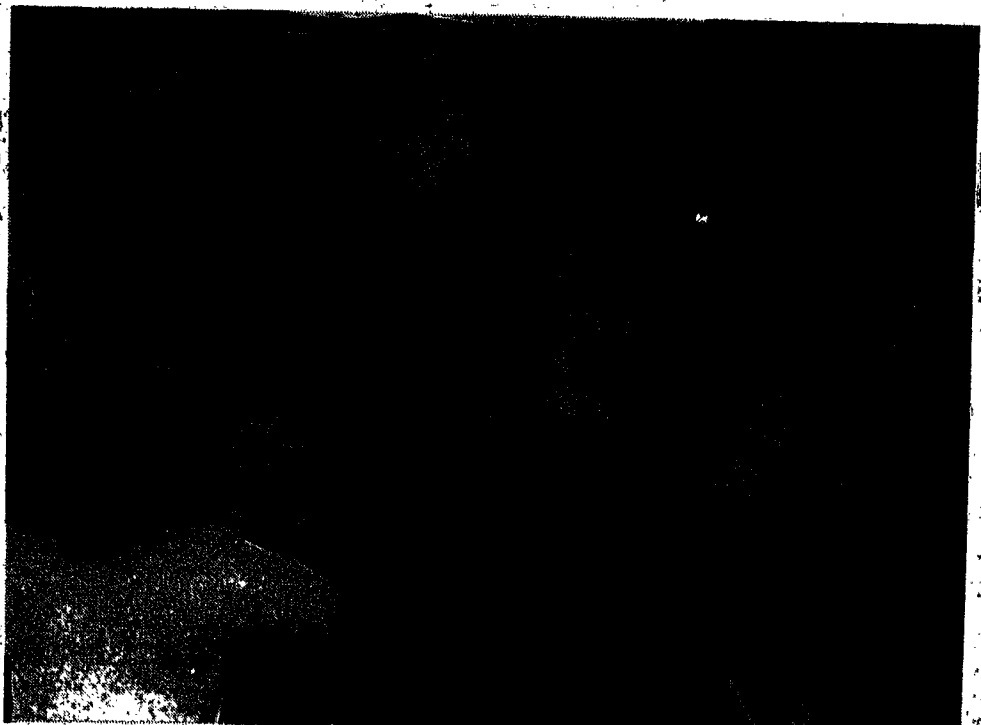

In this way, Ward expanded, responsible educators improve the educational processes and the student's education.

Participants examined a variety of tests for reliability, validity, and general information.

Misuse of test results was cited by some participants as a deterrent to good education and a legitimate concern of teachers.

Participants were given a variety of booklets, pamphlets, and information, which has now become part of the AFT's Teacher Center.

Persons interested in this information should contact the office in Gulfport or call 467-1292.

Real Estate

REALTOR

FINANCING INCOME-PROPERTY

If you are contemplating the purchase of income property, the question of how large a mortgage loan you should have will undoubtedly arise. Those who specialize in this type of real estate, go on the philosophy that income property should be purchased with as large a mortgage as possible - provided the property yields enough net income to meet mortgage payments.

From the standpoint of investment analysis, it can be shown that his policy usually gives the greatest capital gain, the largest amount of tax-free income, and the largest percentage of investment return. If no other investment do you have the opportunity to use leverage (a small percentage of your money to a great percentage of another's) like you do in real estate. So, the larger the mortgage loan, the further your own money will go.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at PRESSMAN REALTY, 1332 Hwy. 90 W., Waveland. Phone 467-2224. We're here to help!

Bits 'n pieces

We are still in a serious condition favorable to forest fires, according to Hancock County Firemen's Association members. Fire departments have been going in all directions trying to contain the wild fires in our woods.

We had a good rain Tuesday a week ago and we thought it helped some, but a serious woods fire Wednesday afternoon killed those thoughts in a hurry.

One fireman told us about being knee deep in water trying to control the woods fires.

The northerly winds, common at this time of the year, really fan these fires.

Even if only the woods burn, thousands of dollars of timber goes down the drain.

Unless we let new trees grow, we will run out of a product that will be a major jolt to us all.

So many items are the products and by-products of wood.

We urge everyone once again to please be very careful with fire. Do not burn trash, haul it to the dump.

A very worthy cause will get under way in Hancock County Saturday when two sororities will be collecting for Multiple Sclerosis.

We urge all of you to help these young people collecting for MS. As you know, much research is being done to try and control the crippling disease.

Ms. Pat Harvill, National Multiple Sclerosis chairman for Hancock County, reports the volunteers collecting for MS will be wearing identification badges.

We are sure glad to see formation of the Deep South Athletic Conference in high schools.

One very good reason is because Hancock North Central will give up its independent status and join Bay High and St. Stanislaus in the new conference.

In addition to the three Hancock County schools, Pass Christian, East Central, Vancleave, Pearl River Central, and Stone County are part of the Deep South Athletic Conference.

All of these schools are about the same size in enrollment and this should prove to be an interesting competition between the eight schools.

It is also good to see the four teams in our area of coverage in the same conference.

It sure has been cold for the past several days, almost as cold as it was in 1962 when the Bay froze over.

We are just not accustomed to temperatures in the teens.

Guess we can be pleased with the fact of how pretty the days have been as long as one stays inside.

It just doesn't look like winter with the many sunny days.

VALUABLE JACKET—George Day, owner of Day's Frontier in Waveland believes the owner of this jacket was involved in breaking into and entering his establishment on the night of Friday, Jan. 9. The jacket could be worth $500 to a person identifying its owner. Day reports his business was broken into last year around the same time. Police are seeking the culprit and the public can help if they know the owner of this greenish plaid jacket. It is impossible for our police, or police in any town, to be every place at one time. As citizens we can help protect our property and the property of others by reporting suspicious persons or out of the ordinary incidents when we see them.

The decision by the State Board of Education to raise teacher certification test scores in certain subject areas is a definite step toward enhancing the quality of education offered in the state's schools, according to the Mississippi Economic Council.

"Increasing the quality of the state's classroom personnel is of paramount importance in raising the standards of education in the state," said MEC Chairman Lewis F. Mallory, Jr., a Starkville bank executive. "Many elements enhance the quality of a child's educational experience, but few factors have greater influence in the learning process than quality personnel."

The new scores for teacher certification concern 12 subject areas and bring the state up to the twelfth percentile nationally from the previous third percentile. The scores are from the National Teacher Examinations, and Mississippi's minimum was 850. Other states using the NTE require scores in the 1,000-to-1,100 range.

"An MEC study, 'Teacher Training and Certification,' adopted by the Council's Board of Directors in November, points out that wide variances exist in NTE test scores among students at the state's universities," said Mallory. "And if Mississippi is to improve the quality of education, it must upgrade the requirements for certification of teachers and upgrade the quality of training teachers receive at the state's universities."

"MEC recommends that minimum scores on examinations used by the state to certify classroom personnel should be increased in steps until the state's score for certification reaches the national average score for the examination used," he concluded.

A WORTHWHILE INVESTMENT

The establishment of kindergarten programs in the public schools of Mississippi could have a dramatic impact on the average educational achievement of the state's students - now below the rest of the nation by most measurable standards.

Many educators believe that about 17 percent of a child's growth takes place between the ages of four and six and that a kindergarten program could have far-reaching effects on learning patterns.

The impact of these far-reaching, positive effects did not go unobserved by a special blue-ribbon committee appointed by the Governor to consider the state's education system. One of the recommendations approved by the committee calls for the establishment of a kindergarten program in the public schools of the state.

As soon as the recommendation was made public, an outcry was heard from various state legislators over the potential costs of such a program - up to $10 million by some legislator estimates.

But can we really place a price tag on the future of Mississippi's youngsters? Our young people represent one of the most valuable commodities this state has - its hope for the future.

The value of the kindergarten experience for five-year-olds is widely accepted both among educators and the public. The experience places the child on a firm foundation for later educational achievement.

The Mississippi Economic Council recognizes the fact that the ultimate goal of the educational system is a person who is an asset to his family, community, state, and nation. And, in order to enhance that goal, upgrade that product of the educational system, the MEC recommends that a public school kindergarten program be established.

LEGAL BRIEFS

Understanding The American Court System

By Theodore I. Koskoff
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

The American court system can have a profound effect on the lives of every American citizen, yet it is a system that few people outside the practice of law fully understand.

Generally speaking, our system of government is divided into three separate groups. The legislative branch that makes the laws. The executive branch that administers the law. And the judicial branch that interprets and applies the law.

Since we live under both state and federal governments, there are both state and federal court systems. The judicial systems of our 50 states vary widely, but the same general pattern prevails. Usually at the lowest level are the local courts with very limited jurisdiction or power. The names may vary but they are usually called Traffic Court, Police Court, Small Claims Court, and the Justice of the Peace.

There are two important points to remember about these local courts. Cases are generally heard and decided by a judge and his/her verdict frequently cannot be appealed.

Next up the judicial ladder are the Trial Courts. These sometimes are called Municipal, County, District, or Superior Courts. These courts have general jurisdiction to hear both civil suits and criminal cases. Some state court systems may also have special purpose courts such as a Criminal Court which hears only criminal cases, or a Probate Court that probates wills and hears claims against estates of persons who die with or without a will.

More populated areas may also have Juvenile or Family Courts which concern themselves with only domestic, juvenile delinquency and youthful offender cases.

Unlike the small local Traffic and Police Courts whose decisions may or may not be appealed, all decisions from the Trial Courts usually may be appealed to one or more higher courts as designated by state statute. These courts are called Appellate Courts.

The Appellate Court's only function is to decide whether the trial judge correctly applied the law. When an Appellate Court reverses a decision, it has the alternative of letting the matter stand, or return the case to the lower court for a new trial or any further proceedings that seem appropriate.

The court of the last resort in each state is sometimes called the State Supreme Court. It is the final word in the matter, unless it is shown that a constitutional right is involved. Then, the case may be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court. It usually takes four Supreme Court Justices to agree to hear such a case.

CONSUMER ALERT

Attorney General Bill Allain reports there is some confusion among members of the public concerning South Central Bell's recent refunds to its customers.

Allain said his office has received inquiries from citizens who initially thought the refund was either a bill or a credit to their account.

Allain says the refund, as ordered by the Mississippi Public Service Commission, is a check, which should be deposited or cashed by South Central Bell customers.

Allain reported that he has been informed by the telephone company that over 756,000 refund checks totaling approximately $5,694,000 have been mailed to South Central Bell customers since December 19, 1980.

The state's first telephone exchange went into service in Vicksburg on January 10, 1881. The work of Mississippi artist Ron Despeaux, the display is a six by four-and-a-half foot assemblage of objects which depict the advancement of telephone equipment and service, and includes the industry's centennial theme, "Ringin' Mississippi Together for 100 years." This same photo will appear on the cover of all 1981 South Central Bell telephone directories to be distributed to the company's 756,000 telephone customers throughout Mississippi. The actual assemblage will travel around the state this year for public viewing. Governor Winter has proclaimed the week of January 12 as "Mississippi Telephone Communications Week" in recognition of the telephone industry's 100 years of service in the state.

The name of 'statesman' awaits Mr. Reagan

Editors Note: "E. PLURIBUS, UNUM?" is a copyrighted essay on Presidential rhetoric and the public good by Robert R. Reilly, a former national director of Intercollegiate Studies Institute, and furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

President-elect Reagan was fond of saying throughout his campaign that it is not necessary to make legislators see the light, but only to make them feel the heat.

Of course, the unstated corollary to this is: in order to make legislators feel the heat, the people must be made to see the light.

In his campaign Mr. Reagan offered as his major asset his ability to speak directly to the American people, to build a popular groundswell of support that a recalcitrant Congress could not resist.

Well, Mr. Reagan is going to have his chance, and he must realize, though it was not so evident in his campaign, that making people see the light will require a certain rhetoric on a level that has not been heard in this century since Winston Churchill, and not in this country since Abraham Lincoln.

How, then, should the president address the American public?

The Presidency represents the entire nation. A president should therefore speak to all of the American people; he should speak in terms of and appeal to our common good.

But here is a fundamental difficulty—one which underlies many of the more sensational political crises that daily greet us in the headlines.

What is our common good?

The disintegration of our society under the guise of the much celebrated "pluralism" of interest, ethnic, and even sexual groups makes it hard to define.

What once were "human rights" have now splintered under the impact of relativism into "black rights," "gay rights," "women's rights," and a host of other particular claims of one group against society as a whole.

The healthy diversity of America used to be seen within the context of "e pluribus unum." We now have the many, but have lost the one.

The pot, in effect, no longer melts. New immigrant groups are no longer expected to undergo a process of Americanization.

In fact, as if to prevent this, state schools are required to offer special language and social science courses to these groups.

This is done in the name of preserving "their" cultural heritage, but with the effect of preventing their assimilation into the larger American society.

Underlying these programs is a basic abdication: We have asked ourselves as a nation, "Who are we to tell other peoples that the American way is better?"

No matter that immigrants presumably have already answered that question for themselves.

There is also an element of patronization in these special programs that is not lost upon their recipients.

I recall the insult the Chinese community in San Francisco felt when they were presented with bilingual voting ballots. They already spoke and read English very well, thank you.

A worse manifestation, or rather cause, of the shattering of the public good into so many private goods is the current teaching in our schools of American government, which has degenerated into a study of "who gets what, where, when and how. The basic message of this teaching method is: everything can be understood in terms of self-interest.

While supposedly "value free," this perspective encourages a deep cynicism. It reduces the larger claims of democratic government to the mere distribution of material goods and power.

One can easily conclude from this approach that the high-sounding words of our Declaration of Independence and Constitution are just a cloak for the self-aggrandizement of individuals who benefit most from the "system."

The American politician is thus taught to address his constituencies not as fellow citizens whose desires for family, neighborhood, safety, etc., are the same as his own, but as "interest groups" whom he can satisfy only by delivering certain promised goods.

Worse still, citizens are taught to look at themselves in the same way.

In foreign affairs, the "value free" school of thought teaches that all "systems" can be understood in these same terms—the Soviet Union's as well as our own. We can point to different means of distribution in each but are left powerless to make any fundamental moral distinctions about the larger goods each purports to serve.

The atomization of the common good is also revealed in the frequent declarations by politicians and even Presidents that they do not wish to impose their "values" on the country.

A familiar formulation of this is: "I personally believe that...is wrong, but I do not want to impose..." Can one imagine Lincoln saying, "I personally believe slavery is wrong, but..."?

This is not to say that the entire realm of morality can or should be translated into the public sphere. But how is it that the right and wrong of things (about which there can be legitimate disagreement) has been banished from the public forum of politics and demoted to the private status of personal opinion?

Once "values" are exiled to the private realm, there is really no reasonable, objective basis upon which one can publicly advance the rightness or wrongness of anything. If there is no common good we should all seek, then one is left to pursue whatever private "good" one cares to invent—so much for political community.

The rhetorical impoverishment resulting from this relativism has left our leaders without the words with which to say anything about our disintegrating communities at home and the Soviet Union waxing strong abroad.

If President-elect Reagan wishes to make us see the light he must recover the moral vision which once animated this country and reimburse our citizenry with it.

People who do not understand the purpose for which they live find it difficult to exert the effort necessary to keep alive.

The American people simply will not make the sacrifices necessary to exercise power unless they understand that that power serves a good end. This was amply demonstrated by the Vietnam debacle.

The American political order, like any political order, does serve certain ends.

Any President who wishes to reinvigorate the American people must make the case that those ends are objectively good and therefore in the common interest.

This will not be an easy job since it will go against the teaching of the majority of "intellectuals" who, for the past decade or so, have been hammering away at the moral and philosophical foundations of the United States.

The effort to rediscover and promote the common good does not require a scholarly, philosophical exposition at a news conference, but it does demand a rhetorical explanation of the raison d'être of the United States.

The name of "statesman" awaits Mr. Reagan if he can do this for us.

The flounder may not be a thing of beauty, but it's beautifully good eating, with its tender and juicy white meat. And it's easy to eat - just gorge yourself on one side, lift out the whole bone formation with one swift turn, then enjoy the other side.

One of the ways we like it best is simply broiled whole, just briefly until it flakes to the touch of a fork, then doused with melted butter and chopped parsley.

Yet, we have our favorites among these, too, such as a robust garlicky olive oil and butter sauce, as well as our favorite stuffings such as the crabmeat stuffing so popular all along our Gulf Coast.

But for a change, why not try a cucumber stuffing? Fish and cucumbers and lemons or limes go together very well, and have been associated for centuries in good cooking.

For this dish, heat about four tablespoons of butter or margarine in a heavy skillet, add several shallots or green onions, chopped, and cook over low heat until the onions soften.

Add two cups of bread crumbs, generous dashes of pepper and salt, and a seeded diced cucumber. Toss all together.

Press the stuffing into a large flounder, about two to three pounds if you have one, or use a smaller one if that's your lot.

With the flounder in a buttered baking dish, dab a spoon or so of butter atop it, add a spoon or so of warm water, or better yet, splashes of white wine to the bottom of the pan.

Bake in 400 degree oven for 20 or 30 minutes, or until it flakes to the fork. Add water or wine if and as needed. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve to four flounder fanciers.

If you don't want to go to all this trouble, and still want the tang of the cucumber, just slice a cucumber thickly and saute in butter, and serve atop or along with the flounder.

He said a number of organizations and companies have requested using the shuttles for experimentation and research.

"We have so many customers that it has become a problem of how to satisfy everybody," he stated.

He said the program had gone through all kinds of difficulties and troubles but the obstacles have been overcome.

He said the program is currently almost on schedule.

Launching of the Columbia is slated for March 17.

When asked why it is necessary to have a manned space flight, Frosch said, "I do not believe you could do it unmanned."

He said, "The space shuttle is more like testing an airplane than it is like firing a rocket."

He said thicker tube walls in the nozzle of the engine will be used at the March firing.

A burn out in the tubes resulted in aborting the space shuttle's main propulsion engine test Nov. 4, 1980.

He said the strength of the tiles have also been increased. The tiles are now composed of a quartz, silica fabric.

When asked what would happen if one of the tiles came loose during the space flight, Frosch said it would depend on which tile came loose.

"I do not know," he said. "It depends on what is under the skin of the system where it burns through."

"We have put all our efforts into making sure this does not happen," he said.

Frosch said he regretted having to leave the NASA program.

"I have enjoyed the work tremendously," he said.

"The job, the work, the organization has technically been first class, he concluded.

LITTLE RIVER BAND

'Soundstage' presents the Little River Band in concert and behind-the-scenes as they tour the United States at 10 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 17, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

Taped on location before a live audience at Chicago's Park West night club and in Los Angeles, the hour-long program presents an intimate view of the members of the band who, since 1977, have had six top-20 hits.

Although almost all the members travel with their wives and some even bring their children along, the trials of traveling on the road are reflected in their songs and lyrics.

'Home on Monday' and 'Too Lonely Too Long' were written and are performed as almost biographical notes on the isolation of being away from home.

'Soundstage' focuses on the group as they rehearse before their Chicago show and as they warm up and practice harmony in their dressing room in the Universal Amphitheater outside Los Angeles.

'Soundstage' is closed captioned for the hearing impaired and is simulcast with the Jackson area on WTXV-FM radio in Jackson.

Pearlington's Miss Torch crowned during black-out

By BRENT MACEY

The West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department's 1981 queen, Miss Torch, was crowned by candlelight Tuesday night after a power failure blacked out the Pearlinton and Lakeshore areas for some five hours.

Lorrie Watkins, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Watkins, was crowned in the Pearlinton Community Center, the winner of a department fundraising competition.

Bob Occhi, manager of operations at Coast Electric Power Association, said, "The Mississippi Power Company substation at Logtown experienced a breaker failure resulting in a power outage to Coast Electric's Ansley substation."

That substation serves Lakeshore and Pearlinton, Occhi said.

The Association was able to restore power to consumers by a series of complicated switching procedures, he added.

"The low temperatures had an adverse effect due to the increase in demand for power," Occhi said.

At the crowning ceremony, Watkins accepted the crown from former 1980 queen Sheila Bennett.

The annual presentation goes to the Pearlinton school girl who raises the most money for the West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department headquartered in Pearlinton.

This was the third annual crowning ceremony.

Watkins raised $1,043 in less than one month's time.

Ten girls competed in the event which resulted in a total of $1,681 in donations to the department.

Robin Antry was first runner up raising $259 followed by second runner up Jeannie Bell who raised $112.

The queen will participate in all community activities for the 1981 year, including Mardi Gras parade, St. Patrick's Day parade, and Christmas parade.

Chief Clement Delacroix said the money would be used for fire equipment and for work on the fire house.

He added the department has only 30 active members with 50 back-up personnel.

"We have about 2,000 people in Pearlinton," Delacroix estimated.

"If we could get one-third of the people in the community we could have a fine fire department."

He said price for membership is $10 per family.

Annual dues per family are due in March of this year.

Bay school board vote set March 7

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District board member is as of yet unopposed in his bid for re-election this spring.

Trustee Walter Turcott said just after a school board meeting Monday night he would again seek the post representing areas of the school district outside incorporated boundaries of Bay St. Louis.

"I haven't turned in the proper paperwork yet, but yes, I plan to run for re-election," Turcott stated.

Superintendent of Education J.D. McCullough said Wednesday no one has yet qualified for the position.

McCullough said at the Monday night meeting state law requires the election be set March 7 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The trustees chose Waveland Elementary School for the election after McCullough advised the board either the Waveland school or Bay Senior High School were acceptable polling locations.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex referred to state statutes and confirmed the superintendent's recommendation.

Candidates seeking the school post must file a certified petition with signatures of 25 registered voters, residing in the school district outside the Bay St. Louis city limits, with McCullough by Jan. 24.

McCullough said, Wednesday voters in Waveland, Edwardsville and Diamondhead west may sign the petition and participate in the election.

A certified petition form may be obtained from Waveland City Clerk Barbara Rappold.

The superintendent said the signatures must be certified by Rappold if all are Waveland residents and also by Circuit Clerk Henry Otis if signatures are obtained from Edwardsville or Diamondhead West voters.

The school board consists of five members. Three are appointed from Bay St. Louis and two represent the district's area outside Bay city limits.

Three plead innocent to Gulfview charges

By BRENT MACEY

Three men indicted by the Hancock County Grand Jury in connection with emergency repair work at the Gulfview Elementary School pleaded innocent to the charges before Circuit Judge Leslie Grant Monday.

Trial dates for R.D. (Bob) Rippetoe, charged with false pretense, and John V. Ladner, charged with two counts of forgery, are set for April 13 and Jan. 23, respectively.

District Attorney Albert Necaise, a nephew of John Ladner, has recused himself from the case.

Hancock County Attorney John Genin will try Ladner's case.

Oris Ladner, Hancock County School Board member whose term expired in December, will be tried for conflict of interest. His trial date will be set next week.

He did not seek re-election.

Charges against the men stem from reports to the previous Grand Jury by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol and the Office of the District Attorney on investigations into emergency repair work at Gulfview after a tornado struck the school in May.

The Hancock County School Board declared the tornado damage an emergency situation, thus enabling them to proceed with repair work on the school without following usual advertising procedures for competitive bids.

Some $380,000 was spent on the school repair work. Repairs included work on the building, grounds and fence. Of that amount, only $170,000 was recovered by insurance. The balance was paid by the school board.

In its final report in November, that Grand Jury stated the school board's actions showed "blatant unconcern and disregard for reasonably good business practices and protection of the taxpayer's money. There were clear violations of the law, including federal income tax laws."

The new Grand Jury impaneled Monday is expected to act on the recommendations of the former Grand Jury and continue investigations into the Gulfview situation.

The conflict of interest charge against Oris Ladner stems from his alleged employment by Rippetoe while also serving on the school board.

Rippetoe was hired by the board to repair the damaged school. Louie Ladner, reported to have been an employee of Gulf Electric Inc., another company contracted to perform work on the school also serves on the school board but has not been indicted.

The charge of false pretense against Rippetoe stems from his allegedly receiving a $4,840 payment from the board for services allegedly not rendered by sub-contractor Werlin Ladner Construction Company.

Rippetoe, owner of Bay Contractors Inc., received a total of $228,981 from the school board.

John V. Ladner's charge of forgery stems from two checks issued by the school board totalling $4,480 which were made out to Tommy Lane.

Ladner allegedly forged Lane's endorsement and cashed both checks.

State to host '81 Special Olympics

Mississippi State University has been chosen by Mississippi Special Olympics as the site of its 1981 statewide games.

Susie Lassiter of Sanatorium, chairman of the organization's board of directors, said over 2200 athletes will participate in the May 22-23 competition. She said the events will include track and field, swimming, diving, bowling and basketball, as well as others for multi-handicapped individuals.

Special Olympics is a statewide program of sports training and athletic competition for mentally retarded children and adults. By providing competition at all levels of ability, its goal is to aid in the development of programs and improve the functioning of the mentally retarded.

At a campus ceremony announcing MSU's selection, Lassiter thanked university officials "for giving the participants a chance to show their ability to try, to win and to share with others their joy in competition."

Athletic Director Carl A. Maddox, representing President James D. McComas, accepted for the university.

"Mississippi State University is thrilled at the prospect of being host to the 1981 Special Olympics," Maddox said.

"We will do everything we can to cooperate in the planning and execution of these games. More than that, we will do everything we can to make the participants know that we consider them athletes."

Mississippi Special Olympics began in 1969 with 150 children. Since that time, it has grown to over 13,000 participants at the local, area and state levels.

Flu spreads statewide, no epidemics expected

State epidemiologist Dr. Durward Blakey said this week the 1980-1981 flu season could result in as many as 25,000 Mississippians with influenza.

"We really have nothing new," Dr. Blakey said. "We still have considerably wide-ranging reports: from Clarksdale to Natchez to Columbus. But we have no indication of an epidemic in any county or group of counties."

"With the lag time in the passive reporting system, we won't get private physicians' reports of confirmed cases in large numbers until late January," he added.

"We anticipate the peak in the current season at the end of January or first of February," he said. "Then the flu will die out as it always does, with a few cases occurring through March."

This season's seems to be the classic type, the physician said.

The first symptom is usually sudden onset fever, sometimes as high as 104 degrees; fever usually subsides after two or three days, leaving the patient exhausted for days afterward. With fever are its companions: chills, headache, weakness, muscular pains in the back and limbs, and loss of appetite. The flu sufferer may also have a sore throat and a dry cough, nausea, and burning eyes.

For most people, influenza is only a moderately severe illness. Without complications, the normally healthy person can be on his feet within a week.

Complications occur because the body's weakened defenses cannot ward off germs that invade the respiratory tract. The complications can be sinusitis, bronchitis, an ear infection, or pneumonia.

Public health officials preach prevention. The high risk population — the elderly and those with chronic kidney, lung, heart, or metabolic diseases plus others in poor health — are encouraged each year to get protection from flu through immunization.

Due to cutbacks in funding to the public health sector and in drug production, vaccine was not available this year in the abundant supplies of the past.

Most Mississippi county health departments have been out of vaccine since early November; so public health officials encourage high risk persons to see their private physicians for immunization.

Public health officials also monitor disease activity. The Mississippi State Board of Health collects and reports information from private physicians and other health professionals on the fact and location of illness, the type of sickness, and numbers of people affected.

The reporting system is not designed to provide a specific count of Mississippi people who have the flu on a given day but rather to identify that outbreaks of influenza — assumed to be type A-Bangkok since that's the nationwide trend — are occurring throughout the state.

Mississippi's flu season generally runs from September through April, with the peak occurring mid-to-late-January through mid-to-late-March.

Morbidity and mortality figures are compiled for the calendar year and do not provide a clear comparison of flu activity from one flu season to the next.

In calendar year 1980, the State Board of Health reported about 1,500 cases of influenza, compared to 900 in calendar year 1979, 8,600 cases in 1978, and 1,600 cases in 1977.

"Influenza is a cyclic disease," Dr. Blakey explained. "We see large outbreaks about every 10 years. Mississippi had huge outbreaks in the late 1950s; and in 1969; we're due for another epidemic season."

Outbreaks start in large metropolitan areas, in the big population centers; he said. Since influenza is an infectious disease, it spreads as people move from one place to another, as infected people infect others.

"The more condensed the population, the more easily flu germs are transmitted," Dr. Blakey said.

Two major kinds of influenza virus are known as A-type and B-type. A-type generally occurs more often and is more severe than B-type. A-type also mutates more often, producing such variants as A-Texas, A-Brazil, A-Victoria, and A-Bangkok. Man cannot build up specific immunity to influenza because its makeup changes so often; when major makeup changes occur, worldwide epidemics follow.

The Asian flu of 1957 and the Hong Kong flu of 1968 are examples of worldwide epidemics which resulted from major changes in the makeup of the flu virus.

Since October, the Centers for Disease Control have gotten reports of influenza activity from approximately 85 percent of the nation's states and territories. Most sickness has been attributed to the A-Bangkok strain.

For those who get influenza, physicians generally recommend plenty of fluids, bedrest, and aspirin or Tylenol to reduce fever.

Victims are encouraged to stay out of crowds, where they may infect others or become re-infected.

Individuals should see a physician if the illness lasts more than a week, particularly if symptoms are those of pneumonia: chest pains, coughing phlegm, nasal secretions, and continued fever.

The chronically ill should look for any worsening condition in the illness and see a physician.

HOUSE DAMAGE — Fire Chief George Mixon of the Pass Christian Fire Department points to the apparent beginning point of a Saturday afternoon fire which damaged an abandoned house and servant's quarters of the Effick estate at 931 East Scenic Drive. Pass firefighters were able to control the fire in one hour with the assistance of Long Beach, North Long Beach Volunteer, and Henderson Point Fire Departments. Bay St. Louis Fire Department provided mutual aid to Pass Christian during the blaze. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

would be difficult to estimate the cost of damage to the structure and noted, "How are you going to estimate the cost of 30-foot two-by-four timbers, you just don't find that kind of lumber anymore unless you have it specially milled."

Mixon stated the home is 125 to 150 years old. Hancock Bank is administrator of the estate.

The house shows evidence of apparently being ransacked by vandals and antique thieves. Fireplace mantels and ornate woodwork have been ripped out of the unprotected old home.

The house also has extensive rain-water damage and Mixon pointed out evidence of heating devices made by transients who periodically sleep in the building.

"It took our units about three minutes to get to the fire and with the assistance of other local firefighters we were able to get the fire under control by 5:41 p.m.," Mixon said.

However, the fire reignited twice before daybreak Sunday.

"We stayed at the fire scene until 8 p.m. to make sure the blaze was out then we left an auxiliary firefighter on watch all night with a charged-water line to extinguish any flare-ups," he explained.

"The fire flared up at 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Sunday," Mixon said.

The fire chief reported two units of the Pass Christian Fire Department responded to the 4:39 p.m. alarm along with one unit of the Long Beach Fire Department, one unit of the Henderson Point Fire Department and several firefighters from the North Long Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

"The Bay St. Louis Fire Department sent Unit No. Three to our fire station to provide mutual aid while we fought the fire," Mixon added.

While Bay St. Louis was providing mutual aid to the Pass fire department, a call was received at 5:09 p.m. from a neighbor reporting a fire at the 226 Davis Ave. office of the Pass Christian Tarpon Beacon newspaper.

The Pass fire chief reported, "The cause of the Davis Avenue fire was a cigarette left burning in a darkroom."

"The location of the fire was some paper in the darkroom," Mixon added.

The fire chief said damage to the newspaper office was minor with damage confined to some paper in the room.

USM energy-saving invention patented

A solar collector, which tracks the sun across the sky, has been patented by a University of Southern Mississippi professor for use in solar air conditioning and heating.

Dr. Charles R. Brent, a Hattiesburg native, recently received notice of his patent from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in Washington, D.C.

Brent is professor of Industrial Technology and director of USM's Institute of Environmental Science.

"Through random measurements of the sun's power on clear days in Hattiesburg, I came to realize the distinct advantage a tracking collector would have over the standard fixed flat plate collectors then in use," Brent said recently.

"The objectives before me were to design out the disadvantages of moving collectors, to keep manufacture as simple as possible from off-the-shelf materials, and to lower the cost where possible," he explained.

The results of his experimentation produced the now patented 'tracking concentrating' collector, which uses V-shaped troughs to concentrate the sun's rays on black absorber tubes.

"The 'tracking' principal was made possible by the cueing devices in inexpensive digital alarm clocks. The V-shape troughs rotate daily to follow the sun's path and return to their starting point in the evening," Brent said.

"Advantages of this collector over the flat plate and fixed reflector solar collectors offered for home and industrial use operate at higher operating temperature, higher efficiency, more constant power delivery on sunny days, and it takes solar air conditioning from a very ineffective technology to an effective one," the inventor noted.

Manufacturing costs are expected to be comparable to other solar collectors.

"Tracking collectors, such as those patented, which can reach temperatures high enough to operate an absorption solar air conditioner (three-ton and 25-ton units are now being marketed) can also provide winter space heating for a well-insulated home or building," he said.

It is estimated that such a system will save enough in gas or electricity to pay for itself in 12 to 13 years, providing manufacturing cost are as projected.

"We are currently in a stage of development where a full sized collector will be built of optimum materials and tested for improved efficiency," Brent said.

"Based upon the measured efficiency and manufacturing studies, it can be determined whether the final product will be more cost-effective than our original conservative projections," he added.

USM sponsored some of the research and all of the patenting procedures through its Office of Research and Sponsored Programs.

USM will share any proceeds resulting through licensing or sale of the patent.

Firefighters seeking burn facility

The Mississippi Firefighters Memorial Burn Association, Inc. will be building a 30-bed burn center and contributing yearly to its operation as soon as necessary funds are raised.

The center will be located adjacent to Delta Medical Center in Greenville.

Mississippi leads the nation in number of burn victims per capita. Reports from three major hospitals in Mississippi show that in excess of 700 inpatient and outpatient burn victims were treated in 1979.

"The state leads the nation in house fire-related deaths," said Brent.

There is no burn center within a 500-mile radius, which treats all ages. The only operational Burn Unit (10 beds) in the state is at Delta Medical Center.

The center is often filled to capacity and is unable to accept any more burn victims.

Fund-raising activities are underway by Mississippi Firefighters Memorial Burn Association, firefighters, industries, organizations, civic groups, businesses and individuals in Mississippi.

The Communications Workers of America has been very active in fund-raising and has pledged support not only in Mississippi, but from surrounding states.

Some $2 million is needed to build the 30-bed burn center.

Deep South Athletic Conference unifies four area high schools

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Eight area schools have formed the Deep South Athletic Conference in a meeting of the schools at Pearl River Central last week. The constitution of the conference was approved as well as the 1981 football schedule.

Member schools are Hancock North Central, Pearl River Central, Bay High, Pass Christian, East Central, Vancleave, Stone County, all of which are Class A schools, and St. Stanislaus, a Class AA school.

Hancock North Central and Pearl River Central have been independent schools while Stone was a member of the Gulf Coast conference with the remainder of the teams being former members of the Pascagoula River Conference. The conference will have competition in football, basketball, baseball, tennis and golf. Track is on an individual school basis.

The conference also encourages, but does not require, softball and volleyball for the young ladies.

The conference will petition the Mississippi High School Activities Association for recognition and will officially begin on July 1, 1981.

The talk of the formation of a new conference along the Coast has been going on for some years.

The Pascagoula River Conference has been dominated by several schools for the past few years.

The conference composes the bulk of the Class A schools in the District VIII-A. The only schools in District VIII-A not in the new conference are Oak Grove, Purvis, Poplarville and Forrest AHS. Those four schools are members of the Apache Conference.

The president of the new conference is Les Bucum, Stone High principal, who feels there should be great balance in size and no team should dominate year-in and year-out.

The junior high programs for the schools will also fall under the auspices of the Deep South Athletic Conference.

with a separate organization in the conference responsible for it.

Junior high football games between the conference schools will be played on the Thursday night preceding the varsity contest and will be at the opposite site of the varsity contest.

Perk's football program tops all

Gulf Coast Junior College's football program has been named best publication in the nation in the 1980 National Junior College Athletic Association's "fall" sports brochure contest.

Keneth Farris, athletic director at GJC, said the 28-page program was produced by the college's Public Information Office. It was one of five junior college publications selected by the association.

Others are: Football brochure—Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College of Miami, Okla.; women's volleyball brochure—Lakeland College, Mattoon, Ill.; soccer brochure—Belleville Area Community College, Ill.; fall sports guide brochure—Eastern Arizona College, Thatcher, Ariz.

Wildcats place pair on all-tourney team

Pearl River College lost two games against strong Texas teams in the Panola Jaycee Basketball Classic at Carthage, Texas this past weekend, but still managed to place two Wildcats on the five member All-Classic team.

Panola Junior College, with a 11-1 record, defeated the Wildcats 70-52 on Friday night and Kilgore Junior College from Kilgore, Texas, moved its record to 12-4 by easing by the 'Cats 81-79 in the last seven seconds on Saturday night.

Sophomore Johnny Fells from Picayune and freshman Renee Brown of Lafayette, La. were named to the Panola Jaycee All-Classic team. Only five players from the four colleges made the elite squad.

Against Panola the Wildcats opened with a 6-0 margin and kept the lead until the Ponies jumped ahead 21-19 with 7:12 left in the first half. Panola, with the aid of foul shots, extended its lead to 36-27 at the close of the first half.

The Wildcats, using only seven players, were simply out-manned in the second half and finally dropped the contest 70-52. Renee Brown led the 'Cats with 15 counters, with Landry Cage and John Williams adding nine each.

In the second game against Kilgore, the Wildcats had a slow start before gaining their composure and staying with the strong Texas bunch.

The Wildcats scored their first basket with 13:10 showing on the first half clock and slowly fought their way within one; 17-16, with 7:30 left in the first stanza. PRC stayed close until the final minute when Kilgore added two easy baskets for a 40-33 advantage at the break.

It took the Wildcats almost 14 minutes in the second twenty-minute period to finally take the lead. Center Johnny Fells, who had a tournament high 28 points, cashed in a counter off the glass and the Wildcats led 70-69 with 6:32 left in the contest.

The two teams stayed close for the remainder of the game with the score knotted 79 all, with only seconds remaining. With less than a minute to go the Wildcats tried to kill the clock for one shot, but a stiff Ranger defense stole the ball with 39 ticks remaining.

The Texas team played kill the clock for the remaining time and as the Rangers worked the ball inside, Daryle

Johnson was fouled. With seven seconds left, Johnson coolly hit two free throws for the game-winning points.

Brown took a long desperation shot as the buzzer sounded, but it hit the rim and bounced away. Brown netted 12 and Landry Cage had 18.

"We made too many turnovers in the first game against Panola," said Billy

Holmes, the Wildcats' head coach, "and against Kilgore, missing one and one situations meant defeat for us."

The Wildcats left PRC on Thursday and returned Sunday. "It was a good trip for us," said Holmes. "It gave our men a chance to see how we stack up against teams from other parts of the nation."

The Wildcats are 4-12 on the year and will tangle with LSU from Alexandria, La. on Friday night. The Wildcats next home contest is set for Monday, Jan. 16 against the Southwest Bears.

Hancock's Boss Injun takes 7th straight at Oak Downs

SPECIAL TO THE SEA COAST ECHO

PEAR RIVER, La. — Boss Injun streaked to his seventh straight victory Sunday at Oak Downs, turning back Omega Diana in a rare 100-yard horse race.

Owned and trained by Richard Graham and Andy Ladner of Hancock County, Boss Injun won 18 straight during one stretch last year. With Ray Robbins in the irons, Boss Injun outbroke a usually quick-starting Omega Diana, owned and trained by John Paul Amacker of Poplarville and got to the finish line a half length ahead of the fast-closing second-place horse. The winning time was 7.0 seconds.

Robbins led all jockeys Sunday with four victories, but Johnny Boatwright and Stephone Spurlock each had three while Marty Comfort nabbed a pair.

The closest race of the afternoon came in the 300-yard ninth race as Oscar Meyer, owned by Oswald Moran and trained by his son Clyde Moran of Hancock County nipped Marie's Boy in a see-saw contest that saw Oscar Meyer break on top, Marie's Boy took the lead in the mid-stretch, but Oscar Meyer surged hard at the finish line for a nose victory.

Robbins produced the winning ride.

The Graham-Ladner racing team also was victorious in the three-eighth-mile second race as Sandy's Hannah was an easy winner over Bayou Beacon.

Teddy's Echo, owned by Frank Comfort, trained by Frankie Comfort and ridden by Marty Comfort, was a repeat winner by easily taking the six-furlong 11th race.

A pair of horses from Clinton beat some of the local favorites in the eighth and 10th races.

Sun and Sand, owned by Paul Bernard of Clinton, captured the 400-yard eighth over Ultra Royal and Sunny, both recent winners.

Battling Bill, owned by Jerry Evans of Clinton, took the 300-yard 10th by turning back Talley, owned by Ronnie Reine of Slidell, and Omega's Cookie, owned by Larry Favre of Hancock County.

A foul claim against Battling Bill was disallowed because the owners had agreed to run the race under a no-foul provision.

Sunday's results:

1) 350 yards, Veto, no time recorded, Alvin Addison, owner and trainer; JoAnn Boatwright, jockey. Pluto, second.

Ole Miss cagers 'keep improving'

If you had to sum up Ole Miss Rebel Roger Stieg's performance on the basketball court in one word, that would be " gutsy."

It all goes back to last year's Southeastern Conference Basketball Tournament in Birmingham. The Rebels started preparing for their first game with Tennessee when, suddenly, James Green, a sophomore guard from Ingomar, came down with the measles.

You heard it right—that childhood disease had afflicted a Rebel.

Word soon got around to trainer Tim Garl that Roger Stieg had never had the measles either. Garl immediately inoculated Stieg and started hoping the big man wouldn't come down with the measles.

Unfortunately, Roger had a reaction. It wasn't the measles, but it was just about as bad.

"Against Tennessee, I didn't feel great," the sophomore said, "but I still played. It wasn't real bad. But the next day, after we had won, I felt worse. And, to top it all off, I was broken out in a rash."

Coach Bob Weltlich really heeded his 6-8 freshman center, though. And Stieg wanted to play—he would be going up against one of the premier centers in the country—Kentucky's Sam Bowie. Roger wanted to play—and play he did.

While the Rebels eventually bowed to the Wildcats 70-67, the team, and Stieg, put forth a courageous effort. The Nashville, Tenn. native played more than 22 minutes, despite a fever and a rash that covered his body.

"I'd play five to ten minute stretches, and then rest. Then I'd go back in," Stieg said. "One time Bowie asked me about this rash all over my body. I told him I thought it was measles, and asked him if he had every had them. He just shook his head. That was all we really said to each other on that subject."

But Stieg's effort is typical of the hard worker that he has proven to be for Weltlich's Rebels.

"Roger and Carlos Clark are our two most improved players," Weltlich said.

They have both worked extremely hard with their games, and have been regarded with improved play. Roger has really asserted himself this year. He is providing that leadership that we've needed under the basket and on the boards.

Like any player his age, he has his up games and down games. But he has basically given us good, solid play inside this year. He has also adjusted really well. Last year he was at the post, this year he has been at forward. He has responded well.

"We've had a lot of players play with injuries. That's just the kind of team we've had. But his playing with the measles last year is certainly to his credit."

Stieg says that he has improved his outside shot and his ball handling this year from last season.

"Last year, we had John Stroud," Roger said. "My major goal last season was to get him open for his shot, get the rebounds and play defense. Now that John is gone, it's up to me and Carlos to score more. I think I've gotten better with my outside shot, but I'd still like to improve in that area some."

Stieg, who hit a pressure-packed five foot jump shot from the lane against Auburn to provide the winning margin in last weekend's 46-45 SEC victory in Oxford, says there is a certain science to the inside shot.

"You have to learn when to shoot inside. You have to learn when you have the shot, when to take it, and when to kick it back outside to the point man."

The likeable sophomore began playing basketball in the fifth grade.

"Believe it or not, I started out as a point guard," he smiles. "I was under six feet tall until I grew four inches between the eighth and ninth grades. I think playing point guard for a while really has helped my play, because I am able to handle the basketball better than most players my size."

"I'm pretty happy with the way I've played so far. But I still have a long way to go. My shooting isn't quite what I want it to be, but I am shooting free throws better."

"On rebounding, I won't outjump many guys, so I have to concentrate on blocking out in order to get the ball. That's what I'm interested in working on, as well."

This year, Stieg has been Ole Miss' third leading scorer, behind Elston Turner, and Carlos Clark.

Price takes winter ladies' golf event

Thirty-five degree weather did not slow down the first play day this year for the Diamondhead Women's Golf Association.

Forty-five women braved a cold morning to play and to attend the general meeting on January 8. Winners include: —First flight - Margaret Price, winner; Dusty McBee, runner-up; Lee Arnold, low putts.

—Second flight - Pat Sexton, winner; Vi Kirk, runner-up; Nev Feltman, low putts.

—Closest to pin on No. 2, Lucy Palmer.

Fifteen members of the thirty-member Nine-hole group played.

Terry Settle, as their new leader, reported the winners are Jo Gatipon, low net and Terry Settle, low putts.

This group has players new to the game who will be playing with "big sisters" during the week.

It also includes and wants players who now choose to compete for only nine holes.

President Milly Rubin introduced the new officers at the business meeting which followed lunch.

Helen Mitchell, vice-president and tournament chairman outlined an exciting year of play days and tournaments. It will include a new President's Cup Tourney and a frequent "Play the Pro" day when the pro will play a gift certificate to women who, with handicap, beat his score that day.

Governor's Sports Council 'Lifesports' events list

Thousands of Mississippians are involved each week in a myriad of sports activities, ranging from one-on-one basketball, to marathon running, to little league baseball.

To help Mississippians keep abreast of the lifetime sports activities available for them, the Mississippi Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, in cooperation with The Sea Coast Echo Sports Department, is offering "Lifesports," a calendar of participant sports.

The monthly feature will include a listing of the major amateur sporting events scheduled for the upcoming weeks, including tennis, golf and soccer championships; cross country runs and road races; sports medicine clinics; and other sports and fitness activities available.

January and February are traditionally slow months for lifetime sports activities, but several major events are scheduled.

January 17 - Indoor Track Meet, hosted by Mississippi State University and Ole Miss in the Mississippi Coliseum, Jackson. The meet will feature top track and field talent from the South. A mile and two-mile run for post-collegiate runners are scheduled for 8:30 a.m. No registration and no entry fee.

January 17-18 - Vicksburg Swim Association Invitational Meet at Hinds Junior College.

January 24 - Ryder Truck Winter Run on the Natchez Trace south of Clinton. The six-mile run is being directed by the Mississippi Track Club.

February 1 - Perrier-Mardi Gras Marathon. The 26.2-mile run, crosses the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway and has been billed the world's fastest marathon.

Mid-February - Central Mississippi High School Soccer League championships. The top four teams in the league will play for the tournament title.

February 20-22 - Mississippi Bulldog Tennis Classic. The open tournament is sponsored by the Mississippi State University tennis team and will be played at the Bridges Tennis Center in Jackson. February 21 - Magnolia Mini-Marathon: The 25-kilometer (15.5 miles) run is directed by the Mississippi Track Club.

February 21-22 - Hattiesburg Swim Association Invitational. The meet will be conducted on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi.

February 25-26 - Mississippi High School Girl's State Basketball Championships. Winners of the four classifications will be determined in the Mississippi Coliseum in Jackson.

February 27-March 1 - Jackson Aquatic Club Winter Invitational at Hinds Junior College.

If you have a sporting event that you would like to be included in "Lifesports," or if you are working with an event that would like to be considered for Council sanctioning, contact the Council office.

For more information on any of the above events, contact the Office of the Governor, Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, Walter Sillers Building, Jackson, MS 39202, or call (601) 961-4161.

Lady Wildcats lead division

Pearl River College's Lady Wildcats are on top in the south division of the Mississippi Junior College Basketball Conference and the PRC girls are enjoying every minute of it.

Girls' basketball at Pearl River was revived here at the Poplarville campus back in 1973 and since that time no number one rankings and very few wood seasons have come PRC's way.

At this point in the 1980-81 season things are a lot different for the PRC She Cats. Under head coach Billy Holmes the Pearl River women have etched a 7-4 overall mark, and more importantly, a sparkling 4-1 conference mark.

After the Christmas break the Lady Wildcats were only one game in front of the powerful Lady Bobcats from Jones. The same Jones' team had beaten the PRC girls by 17 points before Thanksgiving; however, last week in the first game of the '81 season PRC handed the Jones bunch a 83-80 setback.

"That was a big win for us," said Holmes, "it gave us confidence and showed we are improving." Last year the Lady Wildcats were 6-21 during the year, so this year's team has already bettered last season's effort.

The difference in the Jones' win last week was the excellent free throw shooting of the Lady Wildcats. The PRC women were perfect on 27-of-38 tries at the charity stripe. That's 71 percent.

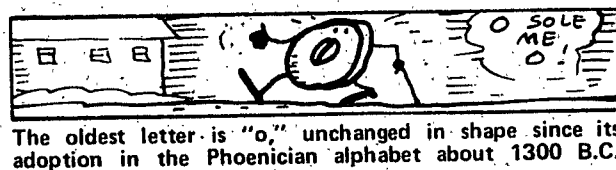

Although Jones' free throw average was a little better, 73 percent, the Lady Bobcats only got 19 chances, cashing in on 14.

The Lady Bobcats took the early lead, enjoying a 5-4 margin before losing it for good with 17 minutes to play in the first half. Taking advantage of their free throws, plus some sharp-shooting by Glenda Gardner, Jenny Ramshur and Lawana Johnson, Pearl River took leads as high as 11 points.

But the game's outcome was in doubt until the final seconds with Jones pulling within two points, 82-80, on a pair of Fran West free tosses. With seven seconds showing, PRC's Shelly DeDeaux was injured on a foul and Ramshur made the first of two shots to ice the contest.

"We just didn't get the baskets when we needed them," commented Jones' coach Richard Rivers. "They kept hitting their free throws when we were trying to make our run."

Gardner was the high scorer for Pearl River with 23 points, followed by Ramshur with 14 and Johnson with 12. Charlene Jones paced the Lady Bobcats with a game-high 25.

GOODGOLF
Tips On A Low Score At A High Age
By Jay Hebert

Jay Hebert, touring pro and tournament winner for 30 years, has been commissioned by Standard Brands Incorporated to assist senior golfers by preparing these tips.

You're never too old or its never too late to learn. Paul Runyan because of his size-lack of distant off the tee-probably experienced more on the short game technique than anyone in golf. In his late fifties he taught some young Californians Gene Litter, Casper, Phil Rogers etc. Rogers this year taught Jack Nicklaus his version of the Runyan short game technique—results—two National Titles PGA-National Open for Jack.

The high handicap senior golfer can usually improve his game by using a lighter club. There's a tendency when using a heavier club to force the swing. A lighter club helps the older golfer "zing" through the ball, thus increasing club head speed.

Cultivate an easier, smoother swing. Instead of using the two-and-three-irons you used when you were younger, opt for the five-, six- and seven woods.

Parish Prison alum heads seven-bout Coliseum card

Jerry Celestine, world ranked cruiserweight from New Orleans, will meet Willie Goodman of Orlando, Fla., in a 10-round match in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Saturday.

Celestine is currently ranked 19th in the world as a light heavyweight and number two in the cruiserweight division, is scheduled to meet World Champion Carlos De Leon for a title match in February.

Celestine learned his trade as an inmate in Orleans Parish Prison, and was not able to begin his pro career until he was 27.

However, in the past three years he has earned the respect of the boxing world with his ability to drop opponents with either hand. Sporting a 22-6 record as a pro, Celestine has had a busy 1980, as he was matched in four ten rounders, scoring three knockouts and losing one when he received a severe cut as a result of a butt from Richie Kates of Philadelphia. The New Orleans contender later kayoed Kates in a return match. George Goforth of Memphis was another knockout victim, and in November, Celestine kayoed Pablo Ramos in eight rounds while appearing on the Duran-Leonard closed circuit television show.

Since 1976, Celestine has been employed by the Orleans Parish Criminal Sheriff as a boxing coach of the amateur team sponsored by the sheriff's department.

Chief Deputy Leslie Bonano stated that Celestine is dedicated to his profession and to the task of working with the youth of New Orleans.

"He serves as an inspiration to the young boxers, not only as to conditioning of their bodies, but to obey the law," the deputy said.

Goodman has had 18 pro bouts and has won seven by knockout. He is working on a farm in Clark County, Mississippi, running eight miles every day, and states that he will be in top condition for the fight.

"I feel that a win over Celestine will put me in line for some big paydays in the ring," expressed a confident Goodman.

In a six-round bout scheduled prior to the main event, Melvin Paul, three-time national amateur 132-pound champion, will meet Jorge Abana of Westwego, La.

Five preliminary bouts, all four rounders, will match:

—Raymond White and Philip Knowles, both heavyweights from Gulfport.

—Jerome Clouden, Harahan and Claude Byrd Jr., Pascagoula, light heavyweights.

—Tommy Rogers, Hattiesburg and Mike Box from Mobile, light heavies.

—Ricky Tibbler, Biloxi, and Tyrone Powell, New Orleans, middleweights.

—Clinton Champagne, Biloxi and Bruce Calway, New Orleans, light heavies.

The bouts begin at 8 p.m. All seats are reserved and may be purchased at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum and the Factory Seafood Restaurant, East Beach, Biloxi.

Prices are: Ringside, $10; Telescope and Terrace, $8; Balcony, $6.

COOKIN' CAJUN

CAJUN COOK — Justin Wilson has been having a love affair with cooking for years, and as a result, educational television viewers have been in love with his television programs ever since they premiered in 1972. The programs are still as popular as a Justin Wilson rabbit etouffee and will be rebroadcast on Mississippi Educational Television Network at 2:30 p.m. on Saturdays. Programs blend humor and common-sense advice with recipes for vegetables, soups and salads, lamb and pork, duck and goose and many more Cajun delicacies.

Magistrate speaks to legal secretaries

John Roper, magistrate of the U.S. District Court for the Southern Division of Mississippi, was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Harrison and Hancock Counties Legal Secretaries Association at the Best Western Inn recently.

Roper was the first full time magistrate in the federal court system and was appointed in 1974.

"He explained the history of the office and discussed his authority and duties as magistrate," a group spokesman reported this week.

"Guests at the meeting were Jean Read, secretary to Roper; Wanda Palmer, employed by Attorneys Floyd and played by Attorneys Pringle and Pringle," the spokesman noted.

"Donna Cave, legal education chairman, presented a quiz regarding the Social Security Program," the spokesman said.

"Rita Smith, governor, announced the State Spring Board Meeting would be in Vicksburg on Jan. 17 and 18," the spokesman stated.

"Plans for selection of the 'Boss of the Year,' 'Legal Secretary of the Year,' and 'Scholarship Recipient' were discussed," the spokesman added.

The next meeting of the Harrison and Hancock Counties Legal Secretaries Association will be Feb. 12.

All Mississippians invited to reception

Mike Retzer, chairman of the Mississippi Republican Party, announced recently that the state party, Sen. Thad Cochran, Rep. Trent Lott and Hinson will host a reception in Washington, D.C., for all Mississippians attending the inauguration of President-Elect Ronald Reagan.

"We welcome the opportunity to greet all our fellow Mississippians who will be in Washington to witness this important occasion in our nation's history," Retzer said. The reception will be from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 19 in the Capitol Hill Building at 300 First Street, S.E., adjacent to the Dwight D. Eisenhower Center.

All persons from Mississippi attending the inauguration are urged to attend.

NSTL buffer zone regulations noted

The National Space Technology Laboratories' buffer zone dissipates loud, low-frequency sound waves generated by static tests of large rocket propulsion systems.

"The vast majority of the 128,328 acres in the buffer zone are owned by private landowners who retain all rights to the property except for the construction of dwellings or similar structures. The federal government owns a few scattered parcels of land in the buffer zone," NSTL Public Affairs Officer Mack Herring said this week.

"Therefore, entering onto the privately-owned land comprising the buffer zone is illegal without permission of the landowner, and persons who do so are subject to prosecution for trespassing," Herring noted.

"As NASA's agent, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is responsible for assuring that the buffer zone regulations are met. NSTL Security personnel also provide surveillance, and sheriffs, constables and game wardens are charged with enforcement of the law," he explained.

"The buffer zone is clearly marked with signs, as are the 13,400 acres of government-owned land where the NSTL facilities are located in Hancock County," Herring reported. "NSTL, with the acoustic buffer zone, has the capability to test the Space Shuttle's propulsion system, as well as other large systems that may be developed in the future," he said.

Mothers, babies' group sets goals

The Mississippi Coalition for Mothers and Babies recently had a workshop on the Gulf Coast to acquaint residents with problems of maternal and child health in Mississippi.

The organizational meeting at the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center was attended by representatives of approximately 15 groups from hospitals, public and private agencies, and concerned citizens.

Group spokesman Jill Easton said this week, "Coalition goals agreed upon for the group include an 'Advocacy Network,' to inform interested persons of bills coming before the legislature pertaining to mothers and infants, enabling coalition members to contact their legislators to present individual viewpoints."

"We will urge refunding of Medicaid, to push for no further cuts in Medicaid, and to request expanded coverage for mothers and babies. The group also voted to support licensure of group homes. Support was also voiced for continuation of extended role nursing including Certified Nurse Midwives and Nurse Practitioners," Easton reported.

"Jeanne B. Luckett, state chairperson, gave an overview of goals for the group statewide. Dr. Lynda G. Lee, district health officer of Coastal Plains Health District IX, Mississippi State Board of Health, presented problems of the medical community in dealing with pregnancies in Mississippi," Easton said.

"Testing of the Space Shuttle's main engines and the main propulsion system are being conducted on test stands previously used to static fire the Saturn Five first and second stages," the public affairs officer added.

"Dr. Abramham Gelperin discussed the physician's viewpoint in dealing with pregnant women and their families. Kay Saucier, registered nurse for the New Born Intensive Care Unit of the University Medical Center in Jackson, defined the hospital role in maternal-child health. Insights into the difficulties of pregnancy and new motherhood came from Regina Ueltschey of Pascagoula," the spokesman noted. "The coalition is the only multi-disciplinary, perinatal group in the state. The goals of the coalition statewide include identifying barriers to the delivery of optimum health care for mothers and babies, impediments to successful pregnancy outcome in Mississippi and developing strategies for overcoming these barriers through advocacy," Easton said.

"Mississippi has the highest infant mortality and adolescent pregnancy and the lowest birthweight babies in the nation. A large number of mothers receive no prenatal care during the first three months of pregnancy and live at or below the poverty level," she reported.

For more information about the Coalition contact Jeanne Luckett, state chairperson, Mississippi Coalition for Mothers and Babies, P.O. Box 175, Jackson, Miss. 39205 or Karlyn Stevens, area coordinator, at 432-031.

FARMHEARTSTRESS. Farmers or others who perform physically stressful outdoor chores may get a clearer picture of the hazards their work entails through a new booklet published by the American Heart Association based on findings by the Poudre Farm Cardiac Research Project.

The research project determined the amount of energy needed for different farm tasks under a variety of conditions, and serves as a guide for farmers or others with heart or blood vessel disease and his or her doctor in planning a work prescription.

In addition to physical stress, the study took into consideration the influences of weather, the value of sunshades on tractors, farmers' work habits and a review of related studies made in other countries.

"So, if you have a heart problem and wonder what is a safe work load for you, this study could prove most helpful."

First, the study divides work into three classifications—light, moderate and heavy. Light work includes many everyday activities that are not always thought of as work—such as sleeping, sitting at ease, standing, dishwashing, or driving a tractor or other vehicle doing very little work.

Moderate work includes tasks that normally are performed for several hours without fatigue—such as plowing with a tractor, walking at an ordinary pace on pavement, milking cows, operating a tractor with end loader, or walking three miles per hour on grass.

Heavy work includes the hardest work done by physically fit young men—such as walking on hard snow or plowed ground, pushing a heavily loaded wheelbarrow, shoveling materials at a regular pace, carrying heavy loads on the shoulders, or felling and trimming trees. The study points out that other factors affect safe work load habits. How fast you work has a great bearing on stress because if you double your speed on some jobs you will use two or three times more energy per minute. On the other hand if you take your time doing a job that, ordinarily might be too hard, you might handle it without too much strain.

Work speed is important inasmuch as the body needs oxygen in order to burn fuel, or the food you have digested. Your heart circulates oxygen through your bloodstream to all body tissues. And since your heart is the pump that does all this, you overwork it with fast fuel consumption. So slowing down eliminates a lot of extra work for your heart. More good news is that periodic rest is recommended. The old "take five" admonition of the military is sound advice each hour, and is favored over fewer long rests. Resting under a shade tree beats resting in the hot sun, and simply changing the type of activity will not do as much good as the rest break.

This is important! Don't strain yourself in emergencies or try to move a two-man load! Get another man. Slow it and cool it.

Hot weather and high humidity are head on you—also those chilling, windy days.

Use your head and plan more wisely, shifting hard work to equipment whenever possible. This writer is ever grateful for his study of physics in high school and college which taught him work really is, mass times distance, and how to use mechanical advantages such as leverage to make jobs easier.

Physical conditioning is enhanced through regular, moderate activity and the waistline is a pretty good gauge to what you should attempt. Age cuts you down to this degree. At age 50 your capacity will be about 70 percent of that of age 25; at age 70, 50 percent.

Lastly, control the emotions for worries, fears, and tensions prevent you from unwinding during rest, and emotional stresses bear an extra burden on the heart.

Christmas Seal money still being accepted

A true spirit of concern for matters of 'life and breath' has been shown by citizens of Hancock County, says Elda Duke, chairman of the Hancock County Chapter, Mississippi Lung Association.

"Contributions to the 1980 Christmas Seal Campaign from local residents are still being received and are vitally needed to support programs to prevent and control lung diseases in Mississippi during the coming year," she noted recently.

"Your Hancock County Lung Chapter is one of 87 county and bi-county lung chapters in Mississippi. Each chapter conducts education and fund raising programs to bring a unified effort against all lung problems," Duke reported.

"Our educational programs and patient services reach Mississippians of all ages including victims of lung diseases and their families, medical personnel, students, other individuals and groups," she said.

"Although Christmas is over, the year's work is just beginning for the Christmas Seal people. We thank citizens of Hancock County for your support and your concern," Duke added.

Over 5,000 adult and 2,500 youth volunteer workers throughout Mississippi are active in 'life and breath-saving' programs against emphysema, tuberculosis, lung cancer, asthma, occupational lung conditions, lung problems of the newborn and all other breathing disorders.

"It is the dedication of Hancock Countians and other Mississippians of all ages which has made the fight for lung health successful and progressive," she said.

North Hancock's first doctor helped frame 1890 Constitution

By S. GRADY THIGPEN
The old time country doctor, in most communities, occupied a place in the hearts of the people not approached by members of any other profession.

The distinguishing characteristic of the old time doctor, wherever you found him, was his unselfish ministry to the sick and the suffering, without regard for money, but for his love of his fellow man.

There have been a number of such old time doctors right here in this area since I have been living here.

I pay tribute to these "men of mercy" who so unselfishly served their fellowmen.

Before the time of the auto they made long trips in rain, mud and cold over almost impassible roads in buggies and on horseback on their visits to the sick.

They went without regard to money. They went whether those injured were able to pay or not. The money they collected was truly a secondary consideration.

Ever since I came to this area in 1912 I have heard of Dr. W. F. Spence. So far as I can find out Dr. Spence was one of the first, if not the first, doctor to ever locate in the big area north of Gainesville.

He built his home about two miles north of where Caesar now stands as this was the population center then. I have never heard anything but good about this old time doctor.

Richmond Smith, who lives out east of Caesar, spoke the general sentiment, which I have heard many times, when he said, "Dr. Spence would come to our house in time of serious illness and stay until the crisis in the illness of the patient was over."

We must understand that back then, due to the distances involved and the inconvenience of travel, the doctor, usually, was not sent for except in cases of the most serious illness.

And, since the distance was usually too great to be running back and forth, the doctor would often stay at a home to watch and help until the crisis in the illness had passed, rather than trying to run back and forth, as is done under today's conditions.

In the newspaper, THE PEARL RIVER COUNTIAN, published in Carriere, in the January 22, 1915 issue, is found the obituary of Dr. Spence.

Mr. Grover Vickery was editor and publisher of the Pearl River Countian. He printed, on the front page of his paper, the story about the death of Dr. Spence, part of which follows:

"After a long illness and suffering from complicated maladies, Dr. W. F. Spence died at his home Monday evening January 10th. The news of his death was received with sadness throughout this entire area where he had given his entire professional life to the people."

"He was 73 years old and had been in the actual practice of medicine for over 50 years. Wherever his name is spoken within the radius of this practice, mention is made of his untiring service."

"His name is a synonym of loyalty. He was the veteran physician of this section of the country. For more than a score of years he was the only physician in a wide area."

"His practice extended from the Gulf Coast to Pearl River and into the back country for many miles. Older people who have known him best say that some of his long and frequent rides on horseback were phenomenal. It is also said of him that he was never so tired nor the distance so far to prevent him from going to the relief of the sick."

"In hundreds of instances he acted as both physician and nurse. Compensation was the last thing considered by him and in many instances not considered at all as he would render his service to those he knew could not pay with as much care and devotion as to those who paid him good fees."

"As a professional man his life was not only one of usefulness but also one of great personal sacrifice. He truly lived for others."

What greater thing could be said about any man? Dr. Spence not only rendered great service as a doctor but he also served as a Confederate soldier, was most active as a Master Mason, and took great interest in the politics of his time.

In his article in the PEARL RIVER COUNTIAN, published at Carriere, Mr. Vickery said,

"Going back to the early sixties when the southern states asserted their constitutional right to withdraw from the union and establish a new government, when the southern states were violated through armed invasion in which pillage, plunder, arson and general slaughter of noncombatants supplanted the human principles of warfare, at this time when the Old South needed her young men to defend her honor and her rights, W. F. Spence, though a youth, was among the first to enlist in the Confederate Army."

"He could easily have shirked this duty but W. F. Spence was made of 'sterner stuff' and was no less loyal to his country than he later proved to be to the people as a professional man, as well as a private citizen. His family and his many friends deem it an honor that his name is enrolled on the old Confederate roster as private soldier of Company F, 3rd Mississippi Regiment."

The Mississippi Constitution of 1890 is, without question, the greatest document ever produced by the minds of Mississippians in all the history of this state. The Constitutional Convention of 1890 was made up of the most patriotic, the most brilliant, the greatest Mississippians of that time.

Mississippi, ever since the Civil War, had been under the heavy and hateful yoke of Federal oppression. The delegates from all over the state to this convention were selected because of their fitness, their ability and their patriotism - It was too serious a time for emotionalism.

Dr. W. F. Spence had never sought public office, honors or distinction for himself, but he was mindful of and interested in his country's welfare.

When called upon to represent Hancock County in the Constitutional Convention he accepted and became one of that select group of patriots who wrote and adopted the new constitution.

He served in that body with such distinguished and famous Mississippians as United States Senator George, Governor and U.S. Senator A. J. McLaurin, Col. H. M.

The first telephone exchange in Mississippi began operating January 10, 1881, in Vicksburg. There were 77 telephones that first year.

Today, South Central Bell continues to build and improve a telephone system that now serves 755,000 customers in 167 Mississippi exchanges. We are proud of the tradition of service that began 100 years ago in Vicksburg.

A new way of charging for Directory Assistance (DA) is now in effect in Mississippi. To avoid DA charges on your phone bill, remember these important points when you need a number:

— Always look in the directory first; most of the numbers you'll need will be listed there.

— Make the most of your monthly 10-call allowance by planning ahead. You can ask for as many as three numbers on each call to DA. And that means that you can get as many as 30 numbers each month without being charged.

— When you must call DA, jot down the numbers you get in a personal directory or on a Quick List, such as the one on the back of your directory. The list will provide easy reference and help you avoid DA charges in the future.

— If you move to another city, take your directory and personal number list with you. They will help you save time when you want to call friends or business associates you left behind.

— When calling out-of-state long distance Directory Assistance (1 + area code + 555-1212), be sure to dial the area code. There is no charge for calls to out-of-state DA. (If you leave out the area code, you will reach DA for long distance numbers within Mississippi.)

Chances are, by following these tips and using your ten-call allowance wisely, you'll seldom, if ever, have DA charges on your bill. So look in the book for everything and everybody!
